MORE BOODLE.

How the Merchants' Terminal Railway Bill Passed the Council.

Maj. J. H. McNamara Secretly Held the Sealed Envelopes in Trust for Councilmen.

A One-Ninth Interest in the Franchise Exchanged by a Bribed Councilman for $2,200.

The Stormy Interview Between the Presidents and the Kickling Councilmen Who Was Nearly Tricked Out of His Bribe—Here Are Facts for the Grand-Jury to Hear Down—Another One-Ninth Interest Which Was Paid for Pulling Mayor Noonan Off and Securing the Support of Councilman Phil Rohan—President Rainwater Says This Was a "Legitimate" Transaction—Father Walsh Discusses Projector Tom Scott—The "Post-Dispatch" Developments and the Official Records Compared—Read Between the Lines.

The Merchants' Terminal bill was boodled through the Assembly.

The evidence is at hand. When the bill was pending in the Council the Merchants' Terminal people began to despair of its passage because they became convinced that two members of the Council whose positions upon committees put them in control of the situation were not disposed favorably towards it. They set about to ascertain what was at the bottom of the antagonism.

They found out.

One of the two Councilmen referred to was fighting the bill because of his allegiance to Mayor Noonan, who was opposed to it because one of its promoters was his arch enemy, Mayor David R. Francis.

The reason for the opposition of the other Councilman was entirely of a pecuniary nature.

The manner in which it was learned by the Merchants' Terminal people was rather roundabout. Thomas Cleary, the Superintendent of the Poor-House, went to Mayor Francis, who had appointed him, and told him to tell Maj. Rainwater, who is President of the Terminal Co., that if he wished to deal with the Councilman aforesaid he could do so through a certain attorney, whose office is at Seventh and Chestnut streets.

The negotiations were opened. That the dicker was made there is strong evidence, and it is submitted.

Both the Merchants' Terminal projectors and the Councilmen were distrustful of one another, and it became necessary to agree on some plan of exchange which would give equal assurance to both that they would not be tricked. The first point, however, was the terms upon which the Councilman was to let go the hold he had upon the bill and work for its passage. This was easily settled. The Councilman was to be given one-ninth interest in the franchise.

The matter of conveying this one-ninth share was the difficult point to be settled.

The Councilman suggested that Maj. James H. McNamara, the architect at Third and Locust streets, be given it to hold for him in trust until he had carried out his part of the contract.

This was satisfactory to the projectors of the Merchants' Terminal people.

Maj. McNamara gave a sealed package to the principal projectors of the Merchants' Terminal and he held that package, he admitted, as an understanding with some of the Councilmen.

What the contents were Mr. McNamara states he does not know, only knowing that he had the agreement between the Merchants' Terminal people and the Councilman or Councilmen for whom he held the package. He simply stated, however, that he was told to give it back to those who gave it to him.

He says he gave it back to Messrs. C. C. Rainwater, H. C. Cobb, Jno. F. Perry and John H. Overall.

Why he gave it back to them instead of to the Councilmen he does not know, except that he had given it to them for an interview, it being no objection from the parties of the second part.

When Maj. Rainwater was seen this morning he was asked about the package which Mr. McNamara held he said he thought it must have been the contract with an attorney for his work in favor of the bill.

If he thinks so he is mistaken. He ought to know better.

The character of this work which the attorney for whom the package was given did for the ninth interest in the franchise is fully and completely told below and makes a most readable story. But it is not as interesting as the one above.

Why Maj. McNamara should hold an agreement with an attorney for a perfectly legitimate piece of business was not explained by the projectors of the Terminal Co.

Mr. McNamara simply denied that he had any stock of the company in trust for a Councilman.

The facts as the Post-DISPATCH has discovered are that when the stock or agreement or whatever it was which Mr. McNamara held was returned to him for an interview, it, there being no objection from the parties of the second part.

KERENS ON THE GROUND.

THE ST. LOUIS POST-OFFICE FIGHT TO BE CONDUCTED AT SHORT RANGE.

The Colonel Confident That Schuarte Will Be the Appointee—Beach Makes a Final Effort for Filley—Chandler and Vest—World's Fair Work—Arguments and Petitions Touching the Tariff—Washington News.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 4.—The post-office matter promises to be taken up again at once. This morning's train from the West brought, among other distinguished gentlemen from Missouri, Col. R. C. Kerens. It was the Colonel's intention to go to New York, but when Pittsburgh was reached he changed his mind and came to the capital. He did not put in an appearance at the Post-office Department, but will have a talk with the Administration before he leaves the city. The Colonel feels that Col. Schuarte will receive the appointment as Postmaster at St. Louis and believes it will be disposed of on Monday next. Several telegrams await his calling at the office of Gen. Clarkson.

There was another call made on Gen. Clarkson, however, by Col. "Jeems" Beach of St. Joseph, who is known as Mr. Filley's right hand man. What Col. Beach received cannot be learned. It is said that Col. Beach came to ascertain if the thousands of telegraphic endorsements sent in by Mr. Filley's friends at home reached their destination in good order.

Hon. Matt G. Reynolds of St. Louis reached here to-day to consult with the Secretary of the Interior, regarding the Cherokee matters in which he is interested as attorney. Mr. Reynolds said he was not an aspirant for the Post-office, however, and wouldn't have the place.

The Hon. Jefferson Chandler of Missouri is here on a periodical visit to his former law partner, Epoca Hunton. As he stops at Ward's the World's Fair headquarters were visited by him. In the lobby of the hotel he was pointed out as the aspirant for Senator Vest's place. Mr. Chandler smiled when approached on the subject of his candidacy, and while he was not doing anything in the matter just now he was free to state he was a candidate for senatorial honors and expected to be successful. The recent declarations made by him in Missouri he stood by, and was not disposed to change them in any way. The presence and the gossip regarding Mr. Chandler's candidacy does not appear to alarm Senator Vest and his Missouri friends here. Those of the latter who have until recently been employed in the Democratic House, and who have gone back to Missouri, will bend their energies for Vest. When asked as to the opposition to the Senator they had no fears.

Senator Vest is just now busy looking after the St. Louis World Fair interests and the Kansas City public building bills. He will endeavor to have a favorable report made by the committee on the latter proposition early another week. Col. Jefferson Farney is continuing with the Senator on the bill and for the present will give it his undivided attention. The amount asked for in the bill is $2,500,000, which is expected to pay for the square ground necessary and the building.

The Daily Journal of Kansas City received another lot of papers in favor of J. T. Elliott of Kansas City for the Western District Marshal. It is not believed that Mr. Elliott's candidacy will effect Col. Tracy's appointment to the place.

The Tariff Hearing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 4.—The hearing before the Committee of Ways and Means was opened this morning with an argument by Mr. Edmund Whitman of Boston in favor of the removal of the duty on flax.

The present rates, he said, had now been in force nineteen years, and yet the product of this country has steadily decreased. It was practically a non-producing industry. Its culture required too much arduous manual labor and technical skill. The products had fallen from 27,000,000 pounds in 1880 to 5,000,000 pounds to-day. It was so insignificant that no one could tell its value.

The duty was a burden to the linen manufacturers without being compensating to the farmer. The importation of linen goods had increased four-fold since the duty was placed on them, and the value of the imports was $16,000,000. Much of this linen might be made in this country, but for the duty on flax. He argued, therefore, that the duties should be removed from all grades of flax, dressed and undressed.

In reply to questions by Mr. Carlisle, in this connection, he said that the only fine goods in this country were the best and the coarsest kinds of towels; that about ten million dollars of capital was invested in the business here; that it had functioned well, but was not above, and that fine linens were not made here. There was no reason, therefore, why the duty on flax should not be removed.

The chairman said: "If you had free flax would you have any profit for the goods that you manufacture?"

The witness: "I do not think I would ask for any flax."

The Chairman: "You would not advise any reduction of the present duties?"

Witness: "No, I think not."

Mr. Anderson, a manufacturer of fancy cassimeres, broadcloths, etc. He argued in favor of a restoration of the duties on such goods to the same rates as were in effect when the tariff was made in 1882 and in opposition to the removal of the duties on wool.

In reply to questions by Mr. Carlisle, he said that the duty did not interfere with the production of the raw material, and that what were produced were not made here. There was no reason, therefore, why the duty on flax should not be removed.

Mr. Anderson, a manufacturer of fancy cassimeres, broadcloths, etc. He argued in favor of a restoration of the duties on such goods to the same rates as were in effect when the tariff was made in 1882 and in opposition to the removal of the duties on wool.

In reply to questions by Mr. Carlisle, he said that the duty did not interfere with the production of the raw material, and that what were produced were not made here. There was no reason, therefore, why the duty on flax should not be removed.

The chairman said: "If you had free flax would you have any profit for the goods that you manufacture?"

The witness: "I do not think I would ask for any flax."

The Chairman: "You would not advise any reduction of the present duties

ST FOR THE CAPITAL.

WORLD'S FAIR DELEGATION LEAVE FOR WASHINGTON TO-NIGHT.

The Men Who Will Urge the Claims of St. Louis Before the Senate—Arrangements for Hearing the Representatives of Different Cities—Farmer Wade On the Situation—The Financial Status.

THE delegates appointed by the St. Louis Executive Committee to visit Washington on behalf of the World's Fair candidacy of this city, and argue its case before the Senate Committee, will leave for the national capital to-night. A special car has been reserved for them, and letters have been sent to all the Missouri Congressmen, inviting them to join the party. It is not improbable that several Congressmen from other States will be picked up along the road, as letters have been dispatched to a considerable number attending to the responsibilities of the St. Louis delegation.

THE STAFF WILL BE MADE.

At 8 o'clock this evening from the Union Depot, the party traveling via the Vandals. Its composition cannot be accurately known until the hour for the departure of the train, as several of the gentlemen appointed to the committee and a number of the Congressmen have not been able to decide whether or not they will be able to leave the city this evening. The following gentlemen have noticed Secretary Douglas of their intention of leaving this evening: D. R. Francis, E. O. Standard, Edward A. Noonan, Leverett Bell, J. H. Carroll, C. C. Rainwater, J. G. Johnson, John J. Neill, W. H. Wade, F. G. Niedringhaus, F. H. Rice, John M. Wood, H. C. Kerens, Geo. W. Parker, James O. Broadhead, Norman J. Colman, C. B. Ellerbe, Seth W. Cobb, Nathan Cole, E. U. Simmons and George Ballou. William Warner, Jess phill Hill, R. W. McKeon, John N. Phillips, Marcus Bernheimer, Adolphus Busch, A. G. Buckner, C. H. Turner and Emerson McMillan regret that they will be unable to join the delegation. The train will arrive in Washington on Monday morning, and the St. Louis representatives will at once proceed to work. The committee will miss the efficient services of Frank Gaenlein, who is engaged in the city by present duty, but his place will be supplied by Acting Secretary James N. Douglass, to whose care the Congressmen who will join the party have been committed.

THE DELEGATION TAKES WITH IT an immense amount of literature pertaining to the World's Fair, and every member has carefully prepared himself to answer the points of the claims of St. Louis, and the weak points in those of its rivals. It is not the intention of the members to confine their missionary efforts to the Lower House; the members will receive every considerable amount of attention. The Senate Committee will organize on the afternoon of Wednesday, January 8, and on the evening of the same day, the programme will be arranged. The delegations of the different cities will be heard will then be announced. It is probable that a meeting of the authorized representatives of St. Louis, New York, Chicago, and other cities will be held in the Hall of the Senate, and an agreement arrived at as to the order of speaking. Some favor an arrangement by which one of the two speakers intended to speak before the committee will present the claims of his city, and the other will answer the arguments of its rivals, while the others will give the opinion that each should deliver his address successively, and the case of one city should be closed before that of another is opened. The collections will be made in aid of the display of eloquence, as each city will be allowed but one hour during which to plead its cause. The St. Louis delegation will remain in Washington at least three days, and some of them will be on the ground until the House Committee is ready with its report.

ST. LOUIS TO THE FRONT.—Congressman Wade said: "I feel that St. Louis has as good a chance as any of its rivals, and am inclined to believe that as a matter of fact we are more considerable than the last. I would not at all surprise me to see Chicago go to the front on the first ballot, in fact I expect that she will. Of course she has had a good plurality at her first chance, may be disregarded. But there is no possibility of a choice of a location being made in the House of Representatives, and the Senate may do the second choice, and a large majority of the members of the lower house will be held firm. If the forces of this city are to be held firm, whenever a break comes it will be in this direction. If we can hold together for a number of millions of dollars, our chances are far better than those of any of our rivals. Whatever the Senate does will be important, but whatever the House will be, as the question will be settled in the House."

The collections are going on with most encouraging rapidity and large sums are being paid into the treasury. There are no doubt felt by those in charge that the required $5,000,000 will be raised and the probabilities are that this amount will be largely exceeded.

MRS. PARTINGTON'S second chapter of the old lady's experiences before, during and after RETURN. the event, copiously illustrated, will be given in to-morrow's SUN-DAY POST-DISPATCH. "Beatrice" is Haggard's masterpiece.

"BRADSTREET'S" REVIEW.

The Week Just Ended in Leading Lines of Trade.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's report a continuation of a moderate volume of general trade throughout the country. The mild weather is largely responsible for this, having a marked effect upon sales of coal, woolen goods, and other seasonal staples. Throughout some of the Western States it is reported that low prices of farm products are counterbalanced in part by large yields of wheat and corn and the excellent condition of live stock. Farmers in those regions are said to have large quantities of stock to sell, but the market is not very active. In the Pacific coast region (successing dry weather at the Southwest) cause uneasiness among country merchants. Large numbers of country goods remaining unsold. New values of home products are stronger in a better demand and abroad. The market is in fair request, and dressed hams are high.

The New York stock market is firmer on easier money yesterday and the probability of more seasonable weather during the month of January will tend to bring about better terms in cotton and other products. Money has been erratic, having twice touched 40 per cent. an annum on call, owing to the heavy sales at this time. The Bank of England advanced the discount rate from 5 to 6 per cent owing to the low state of its reserves.

Bank clearing at thirty-seven cities for 1889 aggregate $1,000,000,000, an increase of 10 per cent more than last year and 8 per cent over 1887. Only six cities show decreases as compared with 1887.

The cotton market is quiet, though your fair in fair demand here and for wheat has been in light request, but on fair call from the English market.

The United Kingdom and in Russia, too, are strong, and up 40c. Indian corn, however, on a more moderate scale, shows a favorable market. The faring is weaker and a trifle lower. Barley is depressed and 10c lower on a light demand, while rye is irregular in demand and in price. Exports of wheat (and of four kinds of wheat) from both coasts of the United States this week aggregate $6,000,000, up against $21,000,000 in 1888, showing a total from July 1, 1889, to date of $4,545,318, as compared with $2,000,000 in a like period one year ago, and $4,465,450 in the same period of 1887. The total to this point, however, is not differing materially from that reported one month previously, when it was $4,465,450, and the amount of wheat added to this point, amounted to $2,764,400. Stocks of Indian corn at like points aggregated 15,448,400 bushels last Saturday, against 2,000,000 bushels one year ago.

The new year opens with continued confidence in the future of prices of iron and steel, many consumers being anxious and desirous of getting delivery, and the offer of that furnace and mill owners are willing to. It remains true that the tendency toward a boom in iron and steel is strong in some cases.

Stock-taking and the holidays reduced the volume of trade in dry goods.

The regular trade is good, and prices have advanced 10c. Woolen goods are dull. Stocks of clothing carried over at Boston are large, owing to unseasonable weather.

New wool is dull. Territory wool is slightly weaker. Stocks of wool are heavier than a year ago in leading markets.

Rail cotton is dull and unchanged. Specie-lating is strong, and there is a strong holding tendency, owing to a slight run of receipts and good export demand.

The total number of business failures in 1889 was 1,719, or 10 per cent more than in 1888. The increase in 1888 was 164 and in 1887, 159. ## TOO YOUNG TO MARRY.

An Infant in the Eyes of the Law Suing for a Divorce.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH. BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Edgar Dennis is the husband of Ida Dennis. He is sorry for it. He is also an infant in the eyes of the law and on that account is glad. He seeks for a divorce so that he may be free to marry again. But he was not a minor, he could not get, for he had the charges of infidelity to bring against his wife.

Edgar met Ida at Tonawanda. Their's was a romance of the canal. His wooing was almost as short as their honeymoon. The latter lasted only a day. Rabies never know what they want, and so it turned out in this case. Edgar married his parents and without the blessing of their parents, and without a wife of a day separated. Edgar asks for a divorce on the ground of deceit, urging that the marriage was a mere sham like unto Caesar's spouse. There seems to be more than appears on the surface to this case. The judge who denied him a motion for alimony in the divorce case said that the girl and her father and mother are living in New York, and the complainant is resuming his efforts to compel him to pay their expenses her to testify in the case.

A Massachusetts Bear Story.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH. WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Jan. 4.—Farmer Frank Wilkinson, who lives near Mount Greylock, has discovered that wild animals are not extinct in the Puritan Commonwealth. He found himself confronted the other day by a black bear in his garden. He so fearfully fired upon the bear, maddening but not in the least disabled. It before Wilkinson could fire again the bear turned him over, bit him on the ground, scratched his face so that he became a bloody mass of flesh, broke his collar bone, and then, in the fit of his fury, bit off his arm and leg. The hunter managed to hold his hunting knife, with which he cut the bear so severely that it turned and ran. Wilkinson was found by his neighbors and carried home. It is feared that he will be crippled for life.

Sleeped With a 20-Year-Old Boy.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH. CARBONDALE, Pa., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Onafrio, the wife of a wealthy contractor in the new Ontario, Carbondale & Scranton Railroad, has stopped with Frank Conklin, a lad of 20 years. Mrs. Onafrio is about ten years his senior. The runaway couple came from Forrest City to Carbondale, where they registered as man and wife at a leading hotel. Carbondale is located in a small village, but she had lost sight of his wife's whereabouts too late, and she was on her way to New York, where it is supposed the couple now are. Conklin is a poor boy from pretty. He is the first cousin of Onafrio, and has worked and boarded with him for two years past, coming from Patterson, N. J., to accept a lucrative position at Mr. Onafrio's solicitation.

When the system requires nutrition, and when it is not well to take too much animal or heavy food, a cup of cocoa will be found a most delightful and nourishing article, and W. Baker & Co.'s Breakfast Cocoa is very highly recommended, being absolutely pure and soluble, and manufactured without the use of chemicals. Its properties are valuable at all times, and this fact, combined with its ease of preparation, renders it an excellent thing to have in the house. It is refreshing in winter or summer, though people as a rule do not regard warm drinks in hot weather; but if preferred ice cold, it will be found delicious in that way, being palatable and wholesome in any form if it is properly prepared.
